2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: None of the prior art teaches or suggests the claimed invention. Specifically, while Rongen et al. teaches embedding a digital watermark by modifying a set of salient points, Rongen et al. fails to suggest that the points are obtained by thresholding or reducing a digital watermark or steganographic signal, or that message objects be placed at the points thus obtained, as variously required by claims 1, 6, 10 and 20. Rongen et al. also fails to teach placing a first set of photographs at such positions and then arranging a second set of photographs to complete a photo-mosaic, as required by claim 13. Therefore, each of these claims is allowable over the prior art.
